This month’s Featured Databases:

The History E-Books Project includes nearly 800 full-text high-quality history books. These works are of major importance to historical studies and will be updated periodically. Areas currently include: African, American, Asian, Australasian/Oceanian, Byzantine, European, Latin American, Native Peoples of the Americas, and World/Comparative History.

The History E-Book Project, which launched in September 2002, adds approximately 250 books annually to its collection.

SIRS Knowledge Source

How can I get started on my research paper?

Subject Specific Guides:
The guides provide a starting point for print and electronic resources on a variety of topics. They include suggested subject headings, call numbers, periodical indexes, reference books, and Internet resources. By using these sources, you should be able to locate other materials which will help you with your research needs.
